The Kendall Anderson Nutrition Center is in the process of changing its name to the Kendall Reagan Nutrition Center. This change will recognize longtime donor Danette Anderson (‘87) and her recent name change to Danette Reagan. The KRNC will also be expanding its operation into the new CSU Health and Medical Center at the corner of College Avenue and Prospect Road in the Fall of 2017, thanks in part to a generous gift from Pat (‘83) and Larry Kendall. The gift will allow the KRNC to increase nutrition counseling services to the university and the public. The KRNC will continue to utilize its current space in the Gifford Building and offer classes in the Gifford Kitchen Laboratory. Congratulations to Melissa Wdowik, director of the KRNC, and a big thank you to Pat and Larry Kendall as well as Danette and Monty Reagan for their continued support of the great work being done by Wdowik and her team.

CSU PARTNERS IN NEW $1.2 MILLION FOOD SAFETY TRAINING CENTER

Colorado State University and five other land-grant universities in the Rocky Mountain region will partner in a recently funded Western Regional Food Safety Training Center at Oregon State University. On Oct. 14, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced the establishment of the $1.2 million center, which will focus on helping small and midsized farms and food processors in 13 Western states prevent foodborne illnesses.

Researchers from Colorado, New Mexico, Montana, Nevada, Utah, and Wyoming have formed a sub-regional mountain states team and will coordinate trainings in their states and assist in the development of region-specific food safety materials to address local production challenges.

CSU will serve as the lead institution for the sub-region. Marisa Bunning, associate professor and Extension food safety specialist in the Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition, will coordinate its training and curriculum development activities. The involvement of CSU’s Center for Food Safety, with the Colorado Integrated Food Safety Center of Excellence, helped to develop strength in agricultural production issues and positioned Colorado to play an important role in the new endeavor.
FSHN FACULTY SPOTLIGHT
CSU food safety and nutrition champion receives career award

MARISA BUNNING
Associate Professor and Extension Specialist

Marisa Bunning was given one of Colorado State University Extension’s highest awards, the F.A. Anderson Award, which recognizes outstanding performance by an Extension professional throughout his or her career.

source.colostate.edu/csu-food-safety-and-nutrition-champion-receives-career-award/

FSHN FACULTY SPOTLIGHT
Super Women of CSU honored

LESLIE CUNNINGHAM-SABO
Associate Professor of Nutrition

Four of the three dozen women named Northern Colorado Super Women for 2015 by the Fort Collins Coloradoan practice their superpowers daily at CSU.

Our own Leslie Cunningham-Sabo was featured in the Summer 2015 issue of Mind + Body, published by the Coloradoan.

Cunningham-Sabo, award-winning teacher, mentor, and adviser, has spent the last 25 years researching the issue of childhood obesity, working directly with Northern Colorado schools. Her passion and vision for a healthier community drives her work as well as her hours advising graduate students and volunteer service on local school wellness committees.

source.colostate.edu/super-women-of-csu-honored/

RECENT FACULTY & STAFF AWARDS:

Christopher Gentile
College of Health and Human Sciences
Tenure Track Faculty Scholarly Excellence Award

Tiffany Weir
College of Health and Human Sciences
Tenure Track Faculty Teaching Excellence Award

Soo Kang
Semester at Sea Global Teaching Scholar

Paula Coleman
Everyday Hero Award

WELCOME TO NEW FACULTY

Sarah Johnson joined FSHN as an assistant professor. The primary goal of Johnson’s research program is to identify and develop safe and efficacious functional foods and other dietary interventions that can effectively prevent and improve both established and emerging risk factors associated with metabolic disorders and related chronic diseases.

www.fshn.chhs.colostate.edu/faculty-staff/johnson.aspx

WELCOME SARAH!!

UPCOMING EVENT
JOIN US FOR THE 37TH LILLIAN FOUNTAIN SMITH NUTRITION CONFERENCE!

The program, held annually in Fort Collins, Colo., provides participants with the most current, objective, and authoritative information available in selected areas of human nutrition by speakers who are invited to participate in the conference based on their nationally recognized contributions to nutrition research or practice.

MAY 19-20, HILTON FORT COLLINS

Conference Reception:
Thursday, May 19
4:30-6:30 p.m.
Rio Grande Mexican Restaurant, Agave Room

To register, please visit
https://www.chhs.colostate.edu/lfs/